*The following doesn't contain any gameplay experience.

I bought Let's Sing a few days ago and I still can't play it due to the following problems.

Voxler Games is aware of these possible glitches so I recommend you to check its forum and news for software update info before deciding whether you'll buy it.

1. Game will crash

The program doesn't handle some audio interfaces. As a result, it terminates as it's launched, generating a crash report.

In my case, it's not happy with my Sound Blaster X-Fi Surround 5.1 Pro USB.

You can avoid it by disabling/unplugging the hardware that's causing the crash. But hmm, I don't have any other mic input on my PC.

2. Can't choose the song to play

I decide to unplug my poor SB and use a mic on my webcam. The program runs. The indicator in Option tells me my mic is working. But once I choose Play and the song list appears, a message will pop up telling me to connect a mic. And that pop up blocks me from choosing a song.

3. Doesn't display device names that have non-alphabetic characters

Unconvinced but having no choice, I go back to Option and try to choose another mic. The menu shows me a list of mics on my PC but two of three have unrecognizable name like "{0123adfada, 123123}". So, which one is which?

Let me add that no matter which mic I choose, I can't get to choose my first song.

The bright side to me is that the developers seem to be working on problems their game has.

I hope to be able to sing songs in this game and give it a more accurate, positive review.. i think this game is the better version of Karaoke Party!!

Pros:

Great Playlist, but i think there's too many female-ish song

the visuals are great

have music videos

rig friendly

Cons:

song bars are a little too fast (1 or 2 words) pls fix it asap!

Really need improvements on interface

(i Can' t sort my song, can't select song with my keyboard will be updated later for multiplayer review.

10/10 Must Buy! get it while it still on sale for 15 bucks!. Good for fun but really short choice of music and it says you sing well even if you talk or sing same note for two minutes.. This game is in the same vain as just about every other karaoke game out there. It's very similar to Sing Star, and it's much more forgiving than Rock Band is. I used to be one of the top Rock Band "vocalist" back during the height of the rhythm game genre. I found the game fun for what it is, and there are a good selection of songs for just about everyone. I would really recommend this for someone that enjoys singing, and if you were into the games mentioned previously.. This is probably one of the only games I think that can stand up to a console game like Singstar. Now with all games when first released, there wil be some bugs that need to be fixed. That's understandable. So I don't mind if the game crashes once every other time we play with it. ME and my friends still enjoy singing through the songs. Some may claim it is too easy, but I think thats what you need with a game like this. So it can include everyone in the family, even the tone deaf ones.

With 40 songs to choose from and promise of DLC packs in the future. I think this is a great game for the price you are

With 40 songs to choose from and promise of DLC packs in the future. I think this is a great game for the price you are paying for. :). So welcome to what I know as the first Karaoke type game on Steam. Wonderfully enough, it's better than a good amount of games that had singing thrown in, I'm looking at you Guitar Hero franchise, yes, hang your head in shame.

Where it is no Rockband it's enough to tie you over if you don't have it. There is quite a selection of songs to fit the pop menu with some old, some new, and just guilty pleasures. You can have two people sing at once, which I have not tried out yet but my headset seems to pick up sounds just fine. I don't think you'll be investing in a fancy USB mic for this one.

The negatives aren't -that- bad. The pitch detection is a little wonky and can leave you a bit frustrated at times. The lyrics seemed to go by too fast. The interface is frustrating too. Keyboard selecting is not an option so you have to fumble around with the mouse, trying to select songs that seem like they are trying to escape you. No really, they try to deselect themselves if you aren't EXACTLY hovering in the middle.

It also wants you to upload your face, your singing face, to facebook. So you, too, can look as confused as I do when I sing.

In the end, it's a singing game, it let's you sing. Have fun with it.. [Edit] I bought this game on release back in mid February, since then there was one update, I didn't notice if it even did anything. Back in February people asked when more songs would be added, and they mentioned upcoming DLC packs, which have never come out. So if you're a cautious buyer assume the game has been abandoned for better prospects. It's currently on sale for $7.50, maybe not a bad price for an hour of entertainment for you. That said, none of my complaints have been touched and the game never really received any real update. End edit.

I will preface this by saying, I enjoy the game, I sing, and I'm well versed in the genre in my opinion.

Unfortunately this game is fairly questionable. The pitch detection tends to be all over the place as it's picked up my non-vocalised coughing as a part of a song. On top of that the intros, and subsequently exits, for a lot of the lyrics could be greatly improved, in a lot of songs it can be from .2 to .5 seconds ahead where the actual music is. There is a distinct lack of quality here in comparison to console karaoke games like SingStar.

Minor complaints:

- A handful of songs have non-sung parts that you still have to speak.
- The song menu has questionable UI, you have to click every song and you can't scroll or use arrow keys by default.
- Playing random songs in the pause menu is rather distracting and annoying, you tend to pause for a reason and putting a completely different song in someones head is not a good idea in a karaoke game.
- The track list has a lot of good, but many terrible songs to sing, this is not a judgement of whether the song is good or bad but whether the song is good or bad to sing. If the track list were, lets say, 100 songs this would be less of a problem, but the track list length isn't one of my complaints.

Overall I'd give it a 5/10, completely enjoyable but definitely not good, with it's glaring flaws, minor annoyances, and the fact things like Karaokeparty already exist online for the pc and things like singstar exist on consoles. This is just a weak entry to the genre of karaoke games, and while it may be the 'PC's first' it's probably going to be end up being known as the PC's worst.

One sitting, all songs played and 4 or 5 stars. No multi-player just local co-op. Great afternoon of quick fun. No long lasting value. I'm guessing soon a DLC that is more expensive than the game. All in all ... Great idea. BAD Outcome. Songs aren't sunk. Just not what I had hoped. 4/10 It's barely what it claims to be and only halfassed at that. Shame too I so wanted this to be good.. I put my mic down near my tv and didn't say a word and it gave me a Perfect.. Let's Sing by Voxler Games - Honestly, I held my tongue by writing a review of this product for some time. I bought this for one of my kids to play with their friends for some sleep over entertainment, and honestly that's about all it was. Setting up this thing was a little odd, but nothing you cannot work through, the game play was spot on, really they did this part right, but the list of songs ran short, keep in mind, the collection of songs is varied, but not the amount (or lack thereof) was not what I would expect, I contacted the devs on this one to find out about expansions, boy they were kind clueless and seemed more like a market research firm than a dev. I guess my question got its answer once they put out Let's Sing 2016 I figured they were not going to add any packs to this game and it honestly looks the same way for the other title.

I see that this could have been a good game, but poor execution and planning by the dev team made this a drop in the bucket game, or just a sad grab for cash.

Devs, if I were you I would seriously consider another profession or get a project manager that has some forward thinking to help drive your team, because if you do, you could really make a product that people want and will brag about.

For now, I have to say this is not one I would re-buy or buy for a friend just poorly executed from a project point to me. Sorry.. I put my mic down near my tv and didn't say a word and it gave me a Perfect.. This game is in the same vain as just about every other karaoke game out there. It's very similar to Sing Star, and it's much more forgiving than Rock Band is. I used to be one of the top Rock Band "vocalist" back during the height of the rhythm game genre. I found the game fun for what it is, and there are a good selection of songs for just about everyone. I would really recommend this for someone that enjoys singing, and if you were into the games mentioned previously.. It's not terrible, but it's definitely not great either. Unfortunately with a lot of the songs it's a second delayed so you have to either sing before the words pop up on the screen or just extend the words to make sure you get the bar filled in time (ie: "have a good timeeeeeee..come on". This makes it much more difficult for songs you don't know the words to already, because you're guessing ahead to a beat/song you have no clue how it goes, therefore automatically getting punished. The pitches also seem to be off with some songs, where the singer clearly goes higher yet the game says it doesn't. I've found I have a difficult time with low-pitched songs, it always says I'm off? Even if it's a talking bit and I talk with it. Yet if I sing in a high-pitched voice it's perfectly fine. I am a girl who was always a soprano in choir so it's not a huge problem, but I'm not sure how well it would work with guys/people with deeper voices so just a warning!

TLDR: If you like singing and have the extra money to splurge go ahead and buy it, otherwise I honestly wouldn't waste the money (especially if it's not on sale).
